Investors made purchase offers for $21 million in retail bonds that are tied to the construction of a new ballpark facility in Springdale, Arkansas. This figure met the target set by Springdale's advisors.

Private and institutional investors were given Monday and today to make offers for $124.3 million worth of bonds, including about $50 million for a baseball stadium and infrastructure and $75 million remaining from the $105 million street improvement project voters approved in 2003.

The Springdale City Council is scheduled to consider approving the bond sales during a special meeting at 6 p. m. Thursday. (Arkansas Democrat Gazette)
