

ESPN to Air Clemens Single-A Start on Friday

Written by The Staff
Wednesday, 16 May 2007 01:06

Showing just how much interest there is in Roger Clemens coming back to the Yankees in mid-season, will air his Single-A debut with Tampa on Friday night. The announcement has not yet been made official, but is expected today. As reported by the NY Post

ESPN

:

"We are in the process of discussions to try to showcase coverage on our entities," said an ESPN spokesperson.

Since the network has the rights to Game 6 of the Cavs/Nets playoff series, expect the game to air on ESPN2 if the Nets win Game 5 tonight and extend the series. Otherwise, it could air on either station, provided the Worldwide Leader does, in fact, broadcast the game.