

Written by Maury Brown
Wednesday, 20 October 2010 19:30

Ratings for MLB continue to be strong. While Weds. night's ratings won't be out until late Thurs. afternoon, the 2010 MLB Postseason continues to deliver strong TV viewership for TBS and FOX.

Last night's ALCS Game 4 on TBS was the second-most watched MLB Postseason game ever on cable, with 9.9 million viewers (only Game 7 of the 2008 ALCS on TBS was higher). The game registered 2010 Postseason highs for local ratings in both Dallas (26.5) and New York (17.1).

Through five days (seven games), combined LCS coverage on TBS and FOX is averaging 7.7 million viewers, the best average at this stage in the four years since FOX and TBS began sharing the League Championship Series coverage, up +12% over comparable coverage for the 2009 LCS, which featured the Yankees vs. Angels on FOX and the Phillies vs. Dodgers on TBS and averaged 6.9 million viewers over the first five days (seven games).

Maury Brown is the Founder and President of the Business of Sports Network, which includes The Biz of Baseball, The Biz of Football, The Biz of Basketball and The Biz of Hockey, as well as a contributor

to FanGraphs

and

Forbes SportsMoney

He is available for hire or freelance

Brown's full bio is here.

He looks forward to your comments via email and can be

Latest Numbers for MLB Postseason Show Total Viewership Up Over 12% From 2009

Written by Maury Brown

Wednesday, 20 October 2010 19:30

contacted through the Business of Sports Network

Follow Maury Brown on Twitter

Follow The Biz of Baseball on Twitter 